Faculty Talk: Something Old, Something New, Something Borrowed, Something Blue

Friday, June 9 • 11:00 a.m. – 12:00 p.m. • Human Ecology Commons

Did you know that white wedding gowns have been popular in the West for less than 200 years? As part of a student-curated exhibit, join us for a “walk down the aisle” of wedding gown design with Professor Denise Green '07, director of the Cornell Costume Collection, as she describes the unique history, significance and influence of wedding gowns through the years.

Faculty Talk: What Universities Can Be: A new model for preparing students for active concerned citizenship and ethical leadership

Friday, June 9 • 1:30 p.m. – 2:30 p.m. • MVR Hall, G71

In ‘What Universities Can Be,’ Professor Sternberg argues that universities place too much emphasis on admitting and developing students with a focus on their academic credentials – GPAs, academic major, standardized test scores, etc. Rather, universities should focus on developing the creative, analytical, practical, and ethical skills that are necessary for reflective thinking, concerned active citizenship, and ethical leadership. He will describe a new model for universities that would educate students for the skills they need to survive and flourish in the world rather than simply academia.

Sloan Program Open House Reception

Friday, June 9 • 4:30 – 6:00 p.m. • MVR Hall, room 3301

Sloan Alumni, join Sloan faculty and staff for an afternoon reception and OPEN HOUSE before you head to dinner. Enjoy meeting up with fellow Sloanies over drinks and appetizers in the Sloan Suite.
