

Cornell University College of Human Ecology

Program for Review of Faculty Grant Proposals

In order to give tenured and tenure-track faculty the opportunity to obtain valuable outside input on their grant proposals, the College of Human Ecology will pay an honorarium of $1,000 to an outside expert in the field who is willing to read and provide comment on faculty proposals. Priority will be given to junior faculty and new investigators; however all faculty are welcome to apply.

To apply for such funding, complete this form and forward it to the Associate Dean for Research and Outreach (red26@cornell.edu). Generally it is advisable to choose a well-established investigator in the scientific area of the grant as a reviewer, particularly one who has served on a scientific review panel. The reviewer may not be a Cornell Faculty member. Please include a short CV, weblink, or biosketch of the person you would like to review your proposal.

1. Name of CHE Faculty Member:

2. Grant Application Title

Funding agency:

Funding mechanism or

RFA (if applicable):

Your role on grant:

PI

CO PI

Other (describe)

Type of Application

New

Competing Continuation

Revision

Other

3. Intended reviewer, title and institution (please attach short CV, weblink, or biosketch):

4. Short statement of this person's expertise as relevant to your proposal: